What Do River Authorities Do?

River Authorities were established by the Texas Legislature for the purpose of preserving, protecting, and managing surface water in the state. They have boards of directors that are either appointed by the governor or elected that assist with the governance of the authority.

Surface water from creeks, rivers, and lakes is owned by the state, but the river authorities are assigned the job of managing these water resources.

Be on the lookout for our What Do River Authorities Do? article in Dock Line Magazine. This corresponding Navigating the Current: What Do River Authorities Do? episode will be featured on social media in the month of November.

SJRA Rates and Fees to Wholesale Providers:

SJRA does not have taxing authority, nor does it receive funds from the Texas Legislature. SJRA is funded solely through contracts with its wholesale customers to provide water supply and wastewater treatment. View information on rates and fees to our wholesale customers (SJRA does not provide retail service to individual homes and business) on our website. Click HERE.

SJRA's mission is to develop, conserve, and protect the water resources of the San Jacinto River basin. Covering all or part of seven counties, the organization's jurisdiction includes the entire San Jacinto River watershed, excluding Harris County. The SJRA is one of two dozen river authorities in the State of Texas, and like other river authorities, its primary purpose is to implement long-term, regional projects related to water supply and wastewater treatment.
