What SJRA Can and Can't Do with Regard to Flood Mitigation

Unlike other entities in Texas with flood mitigation responsibilities, SJRA receives no funding from the State of Texas, nor does it have authority to collect taxes, for the purpose of funding flood mitigation efforts. In general, SJRA's revenues are derived from the sale and distribution of water and the treatment of wastewater. However, SJRA works diligently to accomplish the complex task of advancing flood mitigation projects in the Upper San Jacinto River Basin without dedicated funding for these efforts. Accordingly, SJRA has taken on the role of a facilitator of regional flood projects by:

- participating in regional planning efforts;
- identifying potential projects;
- seeking grants and funding partners to fund projects; and
- providing project management, grant management, and other in-house services.

This approach allows SJRA to assist in accomplishing large scale projects and efforts that would not be possible for SJRA to complete on its own. With the creation of the Flood Management Division, SJRA now works to accomplish the complex task of serving as a flood mitigation leader in the Upper San Jacinto River Basin without any form of dedicated funding for these efforts. Accordingly, the Flood Management Division has taken on the role of a facilitator of regional flood projects by participating in regional planning efforts to identify projects, seeking grants and funding partners to fund those projects, and providing project/grant management and other in-house services to facilitate projects and assist in meeting local-match funding requirements. This approach allows SJRA to assist in accomplishing large scale projects and efforts that would not be possible for SJRA to complete on its own.

Water Conservation Corner

Each month, we'll share practical water conservation tips, seasonal recommendations, and simple ways you can help protect one of Texas' most valuable resources. Small actions at home and in your landscape can make a big difference in preserving our water supply for generations to come.

Water-Saving Tip:

Hot summer days often mean a parched looking lawn, but before you go out and water your lawn, make sure you are watering late in the evening or in the early morning, to avoid watering at the hottest part of the day when the water will evaporate the quickest.

Every drop counts. Check back each month for simple, practical tips to help you use water efficiently, save money, and do your part to conserve the best water in Texas.

SJRA Rates and Fees to Wholesale Providers:

SJRA does not have taxing authority, nor does it receive funds from the Texas Legislature. SJRA is funded solely through contracts with its wholesale customers to provide water supply and wastewater treatment. View information on rates and fees to our wholesale customers (SJRA does not provide retail service to individual homes and business) on our website. Click HERE.

SJRA's mission is to develop, conserve, and protect the water resources of the San Jacinto River basin. Covering all or part of seven counties, the organization's jurisdiction includes the entire San Jacinto River watershed, excluding Harris County. The SJRA is one of two dozen river authorities in the State of Texas, and like other river authorities, its primary purpose is to implement long-term, regional projects related to water supply and wastewater treatment.
